COVID-19 has now spread to all of Sudan's 18 states. The majority of all confirmed cases are in Khartoum State. In response to the pandemic, the Government of Sudan (GoS) declared a nationwide health emergency and introduced mitigation measures in March 2020 to reduce the transmission of the virus. These measures include restrictions on travel due to closure of airports, points of entry (PoE) along land borders and maritime boundaries, as well as domestic movement restrictions.

Khartoum International Airport (KRT) is now partially open for entry and exit for flights to and from Egypt, Turkey and the United Arab Emirates. A 72 hour valid PCR test is required for all passengers entering Sudan, as well as self-isolation upon arrival. The operating status includes scheduled cargo flights; humanitarian aid and technical and humanitarian support flights; flights of companies operating in the oil fields; evacuation flights for foreign nationals; and repatriation flights for Sudanese stranded abroad, which began on 21 June 2020. Port Sudan New International Airport (PZU) remains closed for entry and exit. Domestic flights resumed as of 14 August 2020.

Land border crossing points are gradually re-opening. Argin and Halfa official land border crossing points are now open for entry and exit. Karb Eltoum and Agok unofficial border crossing points and El Tina official crossing point remain open. Sawakin seaport is open for commercial traffic. Bus travel and internal movement between states have resumed. COVID-19 testing prior to departure and upon arrival is mandatory, and a negative COVID-19 test certificate is required before travel for all travelers entering and exiting Sudan.

Domestic movement restrictions were enforced by the GoS on 31 March 2020 through a curfew in all states apart from Khartoum, where a lockdown was effective from 18 April to 7 July. As of 8 July, Khartoum State has begun a gradual unlocking with a curfew effective between 6:00 p.m. to 5:00 a.m. Bridges linking Omdurman, Khartoum and Khartoum North are open between 5:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
